Edmonton Notes

EDMONTON, April 3—The legislature after long debate and careful consideration Wednesday, passed the estimate for the fiscal year 1935-36 and has begun taking up its legislative program in earnest. Friday, His Honor Chief Justice Harvey, as administrator of the province in the absence of Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor, came down to the house and gave the royal assent to the first batch of five bills that have passed the assembly this session.

One of the bills was the appropriation act, which provides funds for the financing of the province for the fiscal year. This bill provides for a total expenditure of $23,876,879 made up of $18,736,253 to income and $5,150,626 to capital account.

Other business transacted during the week by the legislature included consideration of amending legislation for several bills now on the statutes and for which changes were considered necessary.

The correspondence and a copy of an agreement between the government and Max Ball, petroleum engineer of Toronto and Denver, Colorado, was laid on the table by Premier R. G. Reid, which is the first step in the development of a $1,000,000 separation plant at the McMurray tar sands area in northern Alberta.

This plant has to be commenced this year and to be completed by September 1936. The agreement is for a period of 21 years and covers a lease of 3,840 acres out of the 8,000 of provincial lands in the area. Construction of a 230 ton separation plant is the final objective.

The initial outlay for the first unit of the separation plant will amount to $150,000.

During the week suggestions for a greatly reduced legislature were made by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of health and telephones, not as a plan sponsored by the government but merely as a possible scheme of his own suggestion. It would mean a tremendous saving to the province in the cost of government. His idea is for a council of not more than 20 members to meet once a month and each member of which would have a sort of cabinet standing. He called it a business administration plan.

Actions of some municipal councils in the province in not being fair in their dealings with those whose property was in tax arrears was severely scored during a debate when the house was in committee of the whole. Friday, by A. M. Matheson, U. F. A. of Vegreville who thought the bill to provide for the consolidation agreements and payments of back taxes in instalments should include mandatory features.

One section of the bill, to which Mr. Matheson took exception, provided that a municipality may bring the plan into operation by passing a by-law before the first of September in any year adopting the act for that year. This was in fact the feature he wanted made mandatory.

Hon. Hugh Allen, minister of municipal affairs, said the rural districts organization favored the legislation provided for in the bill, without compulsory features.

The bill remained in committee and no action was taken at that time in the matter.

Thursday a sensation was sprung on the house by charges of Omer St. Germain, Liberal, and former U. F. A. member, that before he crossed the floor of the house last year he had been approached by a representative of the then premier with an offer that if he did not cross the floor his son, Gerard, then an employee in the civil service, would be given a promotion. He said that immediately he left the U. F. A. his son had been dismissed.

Flat denials of the charges were made by former premier J. E. Brown, who said he knew nothing of Mr. St. Germain's decision to cross the house at the time stated. Premier Reid also stated there was no truth in the statement and former minister of public works O. L. McPherson joined in the denials. Hon. Geo. Hoadley, declared the member for St. Albert, Mr. St. Germain, had never been approached with any such intention or for such a purpose by him, although the member stated Mr. Hoadley was one who had called him on the telephone. Hon. Hugh Allen, minister of lands and mines stated that the son of the member for St. Albert had been dismissed after his father's change of political allegiance. "He was dismissed because his services were unsatisfactory." The dispute caused considerable excitement.

Spring is late this year and prospects are for delayed seeding particularly in the north-central, and northern parts. This may have some influence increasing the area sown to coarse grains.

Canada's Greatest Problem

The Canadian people are confronted with a gigantic problem. We say the Canadian people advisedly because, while governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal are all struggling with it, the problem is one towards the solution of which individual citizens must make their contribution. The fact that it is a problem facing all other nations offers no consolation because the more acute and difficult it is in other lands only serves to make it more difficult in Canada.

The problem can be stated in two or three words,—unemployment and relief.

The unemployed man or woman wants work and the wages which work will bring to them. Falling work and wages, they must be provided by Governments with the necessities of life,—food, clothing, fuel and shelter. These necessities can, of course, only be provided by the State through the taxation of those other men and women who are employed, or still have some savings accumulated throughout the years of the past in order to make provision for their own future and old age. The only other way is for Governments to borrow money and add such borrowings to their public debts upon which interest must be paid through increased taxation, and the principal sum of which is passed on as a liability for future generations to meet.

So far as municipalities, with their small and limited sources of revenue, are concerned, many have reached the limit of what their taxpayers are able to pay in order to care for those who are unemployed. Further taxation simply means that more people will be unable to pay it, and, failing to do so, will lose what they still have and will, in turn, be forced "on relief." Faced with this situation, a largely attended conference of the mayors of the leading cities and towns of Canada unanimously declared the inability of the municipalities to any longer carry their share of the relief burden and called upon the Federal Government to assume it in the entirety.

On their part, the Provinces,—and more particularly the Western Provinces, which, in addition to the general and world-wide economic depression, have suffered more severely than other portions of the Dominion because of successive years of crop failures owing to the unprecedented drought conditions which have prevailed,—now find it impossible to raise, either by taxation or borrowings, the Provincial share of relief expenditures and at the same time assume the share of the municipalities.

It must be recognized, therefore,—the truth cannot be ignored,—that the problem is a national one, and one that most intimately concerns every Canadian citizen and every Canadian interest. This must now be accepted as a fact even though under the constitution of this country the responsibility of making provision for people in need is primarily a municipal responsibility. That is, the actual facts of the situation override all constitutional aspects.

Then, there, the other side of the picture. Tens of thousands of people who are "on relief" complain that the amounts allotted to them are inadequate to their needs and desires. They are impatient in their demands that relief allowances be substantially increased. They are organizing to enforce their demands, and all over the country communistic agitators are playing upon their distress and worries and arousing their passions and making demands which it is manifestly impossible for the remainder of the people to satisfy.

These agitators all loudly object to people on relief being asked to render any service whatever in return for the payments being regularly made to them. They insist that no person should be called upon by the municipality in which they reside to perform any work in return for the assistance extended to them. They refuse to recognize that, in effect, people are being paid what is tantamount to wages in advance, small though they may be, by their other fellow citizens, and they declare that to ask relief recipients to render any service in return for such assistance is to make "slaves" of them.

Yet Canadians worthy of the name, and knowing their country's difficulties, should be grateful for what is being done in their behalf, and if there is any manhood left in them they should not only be ready and willing, but actually anxious, to make what return they can to their fellow citizens and their country. These agitators demand work,—not for themselves but for those they would make their dupes,—and when work in its usually accepted meaning cannot be provided but State assistance is extended, they then advocate refusal to work in exchange for such assistance, or even for a small fraction of it. Why? Because they are out to destroy the very institutions of government and the very people who are now providing the unemployed with the necessities of life.

Such is the major Canadian problem of to-day. It is one, let it be repeated and emphasized, that vitally affects every citizen. It is their problem; what are they going to do about it?

We submit that the citizen who is employed, or has an income, or some reserves, should pay his taxes uncomplainingly, willingly and promptly and thus assist his country in a time of great difficulty. More, he should make every effort to provide a little work, no matter how small or temporary the job may be, for some one out of work, and thus relieve the pressure.

We submit further that all persons on relief should be reasonable in their demands, should endeavor to get along with as little as possible, rather than demand more. And they should show their manhood and self-respect by willingly, and at all times, rendering such service in return to their fellow citizens as it may be in their power to render.

This is not "to the hilt," and any person who seeks to do so is not a true Canadian, but has an ulterior motive to serve, and may well be described as an enemy of the country.

To Abolish Noise

"Silent" House Will Be Shown At London Exhibition

London is to have a "house of hush," a house so quiet that in it a person may be able to hear the proverbial pin drop. There is to be a "silence" exhibition in June at which it will be possible to see—but not to hear—the following:

A silent house, with silent lift and silent locks, sound-proof ventilating windows, sound-proof doors; silenced motorcycles; a noiseless motorcar; silent vacuum cleaners; silent road drills; a silent factory room.

The exhibition, at the Science Museum, South Kensington will be organized by the Anti-Noise League, of which Lord Horder is president.

Cares For Indian Wars

Recent Incident Shows Canada Is Not Neglecting Them

Canada's paternalistic care of her Indian wars was shown recently when an heroic and successful 11-day search in the dense, snow-packed northern bush of Ontario for Joseph Mann, an ailing Red man and his squaw, was revealed. Both suffering from a severe attack of influenza, the couple were taken to Timmins for treatment.

It was the kindly Rev. Canon George Praver of Sudbury, famous Anglican missionary to the Indians, who directed the gruelling search by dog team and airplane over an area of 400 square miles. The Dominion government paid all expenses.

HER ARMS AND LEGS IMMOVABLE

Ten Years With Rheumatism

To this woman it must have been like commencing to live a new life, when she began to use her arms and legs again, after they had been helpless for ten years.

"I suffered with rheumatism," she writes, "and had been bedridden since 1920. I could not move arms or legs, and had to be fed like a child. Everybody thought I should be an invalid all my life. I forced myself to fight against it, and tried a number of different things. It was Kruschen that eventually saved me, and to-day I consider it is saving my life. My condition has greatly improved, and my limbs are gradually becoming more supple. Already I can eat without assistance, and dress myself—which I had not done for ten years."—M. H.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are the most special salts of sea water, and are known to medical science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution. Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved uric acid needles through the natural channel.

Ruler Of Tonga Gives Ancient Turtle With History

King George is to be presented a three-hundred-year-old turtle with a history when Queen Salote, the six-foot-three ruler of Tonga, arrives in London. She is now on her way to her school, in 1774 Captain Cook, famous British navigator, made a forced landing, owing to shortage of provisions, at the Pacific Islands of Tonga. His reception, to his surprise, was so warm that he renamed them the Friendly Islands, the name by which they have been known ever since. Captain Cook had a turtle, then 160 years old, on board, intended as a present for George III. He gave it as a peace offering to King Tubou, of Tonga. Queen Salote, his descendant, inherited the turtle.

Germany's Air Force

Hittler Reports It Is Numerically Stronger Than Britain's

The London Daily Mail said Adolf Hittler had informed Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, that Germany already has an air force numerically stronger than Great Britain's.

The Daily Mail did not reveal the source of its information but it was known Simon returned from Berlin with documents presented to him by Hittler in which, it is understood, Der Fuehrer frankly revealed the extent of Germany's armaments in the air.

The disclosure of Germany's air strength was reported to have caused grave concern to the British cabinet. Ministers held several informal meetings for a preliminary discussion on what is expected to be a "showdown" debate on the entire German situation when Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, returns from a swing through European capitals.

Out-Doing Jules Verne

English Winter Forecasts Passenger Rocket Doing 14,000 M.P.H.

Jules Verne, who thrilled a former generation by flights of fancy into the future, and even H. G. Wells, with his tales of the planets, are outdone by Charles G. Philp in a book about the "Stratosphere and Rocket Flight," just published.

He prophesies as of "not far distant date" passenger rocket airplanes capable of doing 14,000 miles per hour and of crossing the Atlantic eventually, in even faster planes, in 60 seconds.

Passengers, it appears, will be reasonably comfortable. They will lie down hermetically sealed in hammocks. Special measures are taken to counteract trouble with breathing, for the machine is out of sight of the ground in 30 seconds and passenger's bodies become heavier than lead.

When the rocket plane approaches its destination, retarding rockets check its headlong dive. Mr. Philp's description of the flight makes one itch to take a ticket—for one's most detested neighbor.

Mr. Philp tells us that plans of the first passenger carrying rocket yet devised have been acquired by the German War Ministry. A 24-foot projectile, built after these plans, carried a passenger six miles into the air, two years ago, and landed him safely after 10½ minutes.

Other wonders predicted by Mr. Philp are an artillery shell, with a 500-mile range, directed by radio; and bomber planes cruising 30 miles above the earth and swooping towards their targets at 3,000 miles per hour.

Long Distance Record

Telephone Call From Limer Covered Distance Of 17,887 Miles

Sir Julian Cahn, noted British cricket captain who took a British eleven to the United States and Canada 18 months ago, holds the world's record for long distance telephoning. Sir Julian's record, said wireless telephone operators of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain when the world cruise ship arrived at Hong Kong recently, was made two weeks before when the ship was at sea between Singapore, Straits Settlements, and Bankok.

Atmospherics prevented the reception of a call from the Empress of Britain to Nottingham, England, by the London receiving terminal. But the call was successfully completed by routing it direct from the ship to San Francisco, overland from there to New York, and by beam wireless to England.

At the time Sir Julian talked he was seven hours ahead of London time. The San Francisco control station was nine hours behind London and New York, of course, three hours ahead of the Pacific station. Rough computation shows a distance of 17,887 miles for the conversation between the Empress of Britain and London of which 9,275 miles was a direct connection between the ship and San Francisco. Direct, the voice would have travelled only 7,950 miles.

Records Made Years Ago

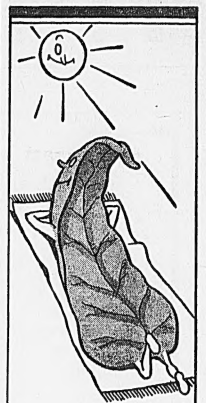

Carry Voice Of Jenny Lind But Cannot Be Found

Somewhere in Sweden or Denmark the "voice" of Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale is believed to lie forgotten. Possibly it is in an attic or a storehouse. The famous singer, it has been revealed, made records in Paris in 1857, shortly after these hours ahead of the Pacific station. The records were of the old cylinder type. After Jenny Lind's death, it is believed, they were sent either to Stockholm or Copenhagen. A Swedish newspaper is appealing to its readers to search their attics, old trunks and boxes in case they may possess the precious records without knowing it.

A Native Of Asia

The panship that is used here is a native of Asia and Europe. We have what are called Wild Parsnips in Canada, but they are poisonous. The panship differs from carrots and all other vegetables in being greatly improved in taste by being left in the ground all winter in the field in which it is grown. The winter's frost seems to give it relish. But it will not keep long after being dug. It is a splendid vegetable for fattening sheep and oxen. It gives to mutton and to beef a superior flavour. The last half of March and the first ten days of April are the best for spring panships.

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail,"
"The Canyon Trail," Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now returns to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Stone has seen the Broken Spur men rustling Gary's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Peyotl Gregg, a drug addict, who, stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, was too quick for him. It but Stone was too quick for him. He quickly retrieved the weapon and examined it carefully and a silence that Dustin broke.

"I reckon this clears me of all suspicion," he snarled. "When the Hour-

Carr, rides out to Red Water to test out his theory, which proves correct, and they find the rich gold deposit mentioned in the prospector's notebook. As they return to the ranch, they meet Dustin leaving the house, who purposely, but unsuccessfully, tries to ride down Stone.

Sam Dustin, the day before Gerald Keene's arrival in Seco, cunningly suggests to Peyotl Gregg that Keene or Kane was a relative of the old prospector, and was seeking information as to the old man's whereabouts. If Peyotl wanted to live, and prevent finding out about the murder, Gregg should shoot Keene when he arrived.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Even Dustin grinned at the thought of the old ranchman, once the Nestor of Seco Valley, being searched for in a gun in a murder case. Gary was laughing frankly as he thrust a big hand into the side-pocket of Joe Carr's coat. But that grin suddenly froze on his face as he drew from the pocket a wadded mass of green-and-yellow silk. He seized it by one dirty corner and shook it out and all the watchers started back as a short heavy Derringer pistol clattered to the floor.

Gary's eyes bulged and Crewe's face changed. Gary, grown suddenly old and grave, stared at the pistol as Gary reached for it. He but Stone was too quick for him. He quickly retrieved the weapon and examined it carefully and a silence that Dustin broke.

"I reckon this clears me of all suspicion," he snarled. "When the Hourglass gets to shootin' their own partners they're droppin' pretty damned low."

Gary turned sharply on him: "You're cleared, Dustin," he said. "But I'm givin' you a word of advice. Say nothin' of this here till I tell you. If any word gets out, I'll know who told it. He'll have me to reckon with. Get me?"

Dustin looked at him queerly and a chilly feeling ran up his back. He did not fear many men but he had a most healthy regard for old Jim Gary.

"Good Lord," he snapped: "I'm not interested in Hour-Glass killin' Hour-Glass. It's rat eat rat as far as I'm concerned. I'll say not a word about it."

The door slammed behind him and Gary turned to old Carr.

"Listen now, Joe..." His voice had grown suddenly old and tired for he had been fond of Joe for more than a generation. "You got some explainin' to do, Joe. Where'd you git that Derringer?"

"I never had a Derringer in my life," said Carr dully. "I ain't got one now."

Gary quietly "broke" the pistol. One barrel had been fired, in the other a loaded cartridge nestled and the lower barrel was foul from the explosion. He extracted the empty shell and fitted to it the big lead bullet that Epps quietly handed him. It fitted. Still Carr stared at him. Then Stone took the pistol from Gary's hand and examined it. Crewe's face was a study. He could not disbelieve the evidence of his own eyes; yet... He knew old Joe Carr and loved him.

"I think we're barkin' at a knot, Sheriff," said Stone quietly.

Gary turned on him. "When I need a tenderfoot to tell me my business, I'll call you," he said acidly. "What you got that's new?"

"A little bit of brains," said Stone. "You can see for yourself that the man's shot on the right side... Just above the liver. Every one in this room knows that he was standin' on Mr. Carr's right. Did Carr reach clear around the man and shoot right toward himself?"

Epps and Crewe both nodded and Gary looked puzzled.

"Are you sure Carr was standin' as you say?" he asked.

"Absolutely certain."

"One minute..." Gary turned to Carr... "Joe," he said gently: "God knows I don't like to arrest you but I've got to. The evidence is too strong against you. If you give me your word of honor not to make any break, I'll take you over to my house as a guest till we can find out what's to be done. If this man dies, it'll be a charge of murder I suppose. You say his name's Keene?"

"Yes, Gerald Keene," said Crewe.

"He and Joe own the Hour-Glass together. That's the best thing to do, Jim. You take care of Joe. I'll get out to the Hour-Glass. I'm afraid I'll take some explainin' to make Edith understand."

With Logan's help they got the wounded man over to Epp's house and a woman was secured to act as a nurse and Crewe drew Stone aside.

"You better stop here to-night. I reckon," he said. "What is it?" he said sharply for Stone was tugging at his pocket.

"I was goin' to say that I'd better stay in here," said Stone. "I've got a clew I want to look into, Crewe... old man Carr never shot that man..." He drew from his pocket the green-and-yellow bandana. "You can't tell one Derringer from another," he said: "But wearing apparel is different. Did you ever know any man wear a damnable thing like this? It's got three bullet-holes in it so there's no doubt about what took place. The would-be murderer had the gun wrapped in this and he fired through it. That's why we didn't see any sparks. Did you ever see any one wearing a thing like this?"

Crewe shook his head. Things were moving too fast for him.

"I never did," he said. "Well... I just got to get back to the Hour-Glass. Look out for young Keene and old Joe, will you, Stone?"

Stone promised and Crewe started the car down the street. The moment darkness hid the car, Stone hunted up Epps and almost by force dragged him into his office.

Neither man ever told what took place in that office but in a half-hour Stone emerged triumphant and headed down the street for the little office where Jameson held forth. That gentleman, bending over a form-case was snatched to a stool and an evil-smelling mass of green-and-yellow silk was thrust under his nose.

"What's that smell like?" demanded Stone sharply.

Jameson, who had been writing a hasty account of the shooting, sniffed and spat.

"Peyotl," he said. "Why?"

"That's what struck me," said Stone. "Can you possibly be mistaken?"

"Good Lord, no. It's Peyotl all right. Where'd you get it?"

"Ever see any one wearing a thing like that?"

"I never did... Look here, Stone... what're you driving at?"

Stone told him in well-chosen words and few and Jameson took fire at the recital.

"It looks to me as though you've got a solid morsel to chew on," he said finally. "I only know one man who can be said to regularly use that infernal stuff. That's the man Peyotl Gregg out at the Broken Spur. I'll

When Is Middle Age?
English Judge Thinks It Might Be Around Sixty

What is middle age? The question was asked by Lord Hewart, the Lord Chief Justice, at the Sussex Assizes when the counsel in a case before the court referred to a certain man as "middle-aged."

"Can you tell me what is middle age?" His Lordship asked. "Isn't it always a little further on than the man who is speaking has got?" He asked the age of the man in question.

"Forty-one," replied counsel. "A mere child," retorted the Lord Chief Justice, who himself is 65. "Don't call him middle-aged for another 20 years."

People of the United States eat only one-tenth of the country's big corn crop directly as food.

We gain 85 per cent. of our knowledge and control 80 per cent. of our actions through our eyes.

He fung out of the car and almost leaped into the house. Spike Goddard was flung aside roughly as Dustin jerked the telephone from its hook.

"What're you callin' Doc Epps for?" demanded Spike.

Dustin waved him into silence and Epps voice came thinly across the wire. Goddard could hear it plainly.

"Oh, Dustin at the Broken Spur. Huh? Yes... This is Doctor Epps... What?... Oh... I get you... Yeah... I know who you mean. I brought him over to my house... Gerald Keene, of course... The partner of old man Carr at the Hour-Glass... You are interested, huh? Well, I'll tell you, Dustin. He died not ten minutes ago... Epps' voice sounded strained and uncertain but there was no mistaking the words. "The coroner'll be in to-morrow. It looks like a hump neck-tie for old man Carr."

Spike Goddard heard it all and stood staring at his partner as he slung up the receiver.

"What the hell has happened, Sam?" he demanded.

He considered Dustin in silence while Dustin told him all that had occurred. Finally:

"Look out you don't trip," he said curtly. "There was a man once who held all thirteen trumps but lost the game."

"How could that be, you poor fool?" demanded Dustin.

For answer Spike grinned at him. "It was old-fashioned Whist," he said. "One man held all thirteen trumps. It was his partner's lead. He led an ace and when his partner trumped it he got mad and shot him. The jury said it was justifiable homicide... Mind you haven't bit off too much to chew."

"You fool..." Dustin grabbed him by the arm. "Don't you see it yet? Peyotl Gregg shot this man Keene and planted the pistol on old Joe Carr... Joe, who inherits the Hour-glass by the death of Keene. We've got Carr's note and we alone know of old Kane's mine..."

"Nobody knows Peyotl killed him," said Spike.

"It do. Old man Carr'll be held for the murder. He'll hang unless they find out about Peyotl. Don't you reckon Edith Carr'll marry me to get her father clear?"

The Ottawa Letter

The high point of the session, introduction of the budget and formal reply by the official critic, has been attained with the usual accompaniment of crowded galleries. People who never attend the ordinary debates don their white gloves and stand in line at the gallery doors on this occasion to secure seats for a two-hour dissertation on statistics and figures which have very little meaning for many people. The poor acoustic properties of the House and the fact that the Minister of Finance shares with most other members of the cabinet the inability to make himself heard the length of the Chamber add to the difficulties, but fortunately there is always Hansard to fill in the gaps for those who are really interested.

The Budget

Mr. Rhodes opened by saying his statement last year, that the low point of the depression had been passed was amply justified "by the marked trend of continual and substantial progress during the year." Of fifteen countries reported upon in the monthly bulletin issued by the League of Nations, Canada stood first, at the close of 1934, with an increase of 46.2 per cent in industrial production, compared with the United Kingdom of 22.3 per cent and the United States 32.3 per cent. The physical volume of business in Canada during February of this year was 48.5 per cent over the low period of the depression, while freight car loadings, one of the most sensitive signs of business fluctuations, showed an increase of 14.4 per cent over the previous year. The increase in employment since April 1933 is 340,000 persons, a gain of 2.8 per cent, while the number of families on relief has decreased in the same period by 25,921.

National income for the fiscal year was $362,370,000, an increase of $37,880,000 over the previous year, with expenditures for current expenses of $358,000,000, showing a surplus in this account for the first time since 1929. But the whole tale is not so good. Capital expenditures were $73,300,000, special expenditures including unemployment relief, $66,100,000, and deficit of Canadian National Railways $48,400,000, making a net increase of $117,700,000 in the national debt during the year. Total increase in the national debt since 1930 is $689,900,000, largely made up of expenditures for unemployment and farm relief, and deficits on the C. N. R. Refunding operations by this govt. to date have resulted in saving of $14,700,000 per year in interest.

Taxation and tariff changes, while of some importance, are not of particular interest to the average person except as they affect the national revenue. The one-cent sugar tax and six-cent salt tax are unchanged, while tariff and excise duties on spirituous liquors are reduced by $3.00 per gallon. The surtax on investment incomes over $5,000 a year will affect all too few persons in the west but the estimated increase of $12,000,000 in national revenue through this tax will be of some interest.

Reply and Amendments

In his capacity as financial critic for the official opposition Col. Ralston, former Minister in the King Government, dissected the budget and claimed that the surplus of $2,700,000 shown by the Minister's figures were arrived at by omitting the large annual expenditures for unemployment and C. N. R. deficits. The estimated surplus of 21 millions for 1935-36 was also based on this system of calculation. The latest tariff reductions were characterized as more apparent than real, as shown by a 2 per cent reduction in a duty of 61 per cent on British woollens while melton cloth for covering tennis balls is made free of duty. He thought the surtax on higher incomes would be a great disappointment to those who listened to the Prime Minister's broadcasts on reforming capitalism. The official critic devoted some time to the government's wheat operations through Mr. John I. McFarland and stated that they now have on hand some 240,000,000 bushels of wheat, in reality in competition with the crop which was grown this year.

On the conclusion of his nearly three-hour speech, Col. Ralston moved an amendment declaring the government's policies to be entirely inadequate to meet prevailing conditions and an appeal to the people should not be longer delayed. This is said to finish the Liberal comments on the budget, following the policy adhered to this session, but there is some discussion by the third group, Mr. Cote (U. F. A.) moved an sub-amendment urging the use of Social Credit in this emergency, by the issue of a national dividend out of which persons of 55 and 60 years would retire on pensions of $50 per month thus making room for the young people who cannot find employment. The budget can be found in Hansard of the 22nd and the reply in the issue of the 26th of March.

Eight-Hour-Day Measure

The eight-hour-day bill, after passing the committee stage, ran into a snag on third reading although it was eventually passed without division. A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg) offered an amendment to the bill, making the hours 8 instead of 8 per day and 30 instead of 48 per week. He contended that comparatively few people will be affected by the bill as it now stands and its results in absorbing the unemployed will be almost negligible, but this condition would be greatly improved by his amendment. Mr. Heaps made a lengthy presentation of the situation from his standpoint and claimed that still shorter working hours are inevitable if the problems of unemployment are to be even partially solved. He had no objections to offer to a program of public works but said it was like putting a plaster on an ulcer—it might cover up the sore but it was no remedy for the condition causing it, and not only would hours have to be shorter but wages must remain the same in order to increase purchasing power so the goods manufactured could be absorbed by the workers. "What I want to see is an increase in the consumptive opportunities of our people that they may benefit by their productive capacities, and only by increasing the consumptive opportunities shall we be able to keep the industrial machine going," said the Labor member. "I am free to admit this may interfere with the large profits of those who own machinery of production but I chose to be on the side of the masses of the people in this dominion." He reminded the House that other nations are working to this end and there is now a bill before the United States senate in regard to a six-hour day.

Mr. J. H. Stitt (Cons. Selkirk) said he often found himself in sympathy with views expressed by the Labor member from Winnipeg but considered that the result of the amendment if enacted would result in further unemployment. Industry could not stand the strain of the extra pay roll and compete with other countries in the export market. "There is no doubt if we were living in a socialistic or communistic world in which profit has been absolutely abolished it would be possible to enact and administer such a measure, but until we feel ourselves in a world which is more in agreement than at the present time in my opinion it would lead to chaos" declared the minister for Selkirk.

Hon. Mr. Lapointe agreed that still more shorter hours had to come but he could not support the amendment because the change in the bill would destroy the slight change the measure might now have of surviving the constitutional issue when it came before the courts. This precipitated another constitutional debate, highly flavored with partisanship, between the official opposition and two Ministers, Mr. Gordon and Mr. Hanson. Mr. Neil (Ind.) supported the amendment and asked why Canada should always wait for other countries to take the lead. Everyone was agreed that under the modern mechanism of industry shorter hours of work are inevitable and he would like to see the amendment carried for the effect it would have on the public mind. The argument that shorter hours would be an unbearable tax on industry had been used for a hundred years yet progress in that regard had continued. "The news that the largest dominion in the British Empire had enacted such a law would set an example to every nation in the Empire and the world" said the member for Comox-Alberni. Mr. McInnis, seconder of the amendment said the Member for Selkirk contended that a six-hour day would cause industry to go bankrupt, but industries are going bankrupt under present conditions so it would be logical to enact a ten or twelve hour day to put industry on its feet again. The amendment was defeated by a large majority. Government and opposition members voting against the independent group.

Rebuke to Opposition

The acting Prime Minister, Sir George Perley, said that before the vote was taken on the main motion he wished to speak about the action-in-action of the Liberal opposition as he saw it was to make legislation brought in by the government as nearly perfect as possible, but to criticize the measures and then vote for them was an impossible and untenable position for any opposition. "I submit that the policy of the Liberals during this session has been simply one of negation. They dare not oppose the legislation so they simply make light of it," declared the veteran leader. "What people want is a man of courage and this the Prime Minister has shown himself to be, and I am sure he will get a favorable verdict from the voters when they go to the polls."

In reply to this reprimand from MacKenzie King pointed out that the government's continual accusations against previous sessions was that Liberal members always opposed government measures. Now that the official opposition is doing all in their power to co-operate in passing these reform measures, as quickly as possible they are now attacking the government. The Liberal leader claimed it was clearly apparent that the government's original plans had included a strong Liberal opposition to these measures on the ground that they had no mandate from the people, which would give any excuse for sudden dissolution and an appeal to the country. These plans having failed by reason of the government's unexpected attitude they have now come to the conclusion this ("make-believe") social legislation is not making much impression as they expected and they must now try to make it appear to the country that the opposition is belittling and ridiculing the reform measures. "May I say that the duty of the opposition at the present time is to do all in its power to give the people a chance to make an early opportunity to say who is to govern from now on" said Mr. King.

The Speaker announcing it was now six o'clock the vote was taken without further discussion.

A number of interesting discussions have been crowded out this week but perhaps these will be overtaken during the Easter recess, which is expected to be prolonged for two or three weeks in consequence of the King's jubilee celebrations. The Prime Minister has been said to be improving steadily and he will probably be able to resume his place in the house for a time before going to England.

The appointment of Mr. John Buchanan to succeed Lord Bessborough as governor-general, though unexpected, seems to meet with quite general approval. The fact that the first commender to be appointed to this position is a man of letters instead of a military or "big business" man was favorably commented upon by Mr. J. S. Woodsworth, while Hon. Senator LeMeux, former Speaker of the House of Commons said "I am pleased to see a commander appointed to this high function. He possesses the only nobility modern humanity recognizes and admires, that of intellectual development."

THE ADVANCE
WEATHER BULLETIN

Week of April 8 to 14 1935

Mon, April 8, 1-35—Nearly everywhere fairly clear but unusually warm weather, though may be light precipitation near great lakes and also some snow.

Tues, April 9—Remains clear and warm in central regions and east, but in northwest and on Pacific slope turns colder and somewhat unsettled.

Wed, April 10—Turns colder in central provinces and about southwest coast, with disturbance with easterly precipitation; clear in east and temperatures still above normal.

Thurs, April 11—Unsettled in southwest of central provinces, but to east fairly clear; nearly everywhere turning much colder, especially in northwest.

Fri, April 12—Slow moving storm disturbance with considerable precipitation in southwest and central regions, extending east along southern borders.

Sat, April 13—Trains and snows slowly drift along southern sections from Pacific southwest to great lakes; much colder nearly everywhere.

Sun, April 14—Remains unsettled in the southwest and along most of southern borders, but clearing in far north-west and north-east; temperatures generally rising.

Week of April 15 to 21 in central provinces begins with fairly clear and warm weather, temperatures nearly everywhere being considerably above the seasonal normal. Near mid week a change comes on, turns very much colder, unsettled and finally drifts in from the middle west, and around end of week some heavy precipitation is expected, especially in southwest and central sections, though probably also extending to great lakes and east. Just at end of week temperatures moderate and in most parts of northeast clearing.

This week brings on the warm spell predicted for early April. It is featured by a steady rise of temperatures from near first of the month and reaches a peak not far from the 9th about the west but nearer the 12th in eastern sections. Then an unsettled and probably heavy storm period comes on, immediately followed by a rapid decline in temperatures. Such weather as this is usually unfavorable for orchard trees and shrubs. A week of warm weather at this season, followed by heavy frosts is never in any way a great growing in early spring. It is advantageous to any crops that might be advanced to any precautions be taken against a cold spell expected late in April.

A Farewell party in honor of Johnny Demaree, who is leaving shortly for Granum, was held Wed. evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Young. It was well attended by young people from the town and country, the five being present. The evening was spent in dancing and at midnight a dainty lunch was served. We all wish Johnny success and happiness in his new home.

PEYTON NEWS

The Pie Social and dance sponsored by the Myrtle and Peyton school districts was largely attended, and proved a success in every way.

The pies were daintily decorated and were ardently auctioned off by Mr. Warren with great zest and humor. There were 27 pies sold, which totaled $11.00. Miss Barbara Shier and Mrs. Gus Cook shared the honors of being "Belle of the Ball" while Reynard Peterson deserves honorable mention of being the Champion Pie Eater consuming not less than five quarters of pie.

Miss Audrey Neff won the delicious cake, which was raffled for $40.00. The music for the dance was donated by the musicians of the surrounding district, and was very much appreciated.

The total amount received was $15.00 and will be given to the School Fair funds.
